CHAPTER 1

Introduction & Core Philosophy

1. Introduction & Core Philosophy

Welcome to the updated version of your foundational guide for building a sustainable, high-integrity financial services practice. As an associate, Field Associate (FA), Senior Field Associate (SFA), or participant in the Field Apprenticeship Program (FAP), your primary asset is the trust you have established within your network. This training manual bridges professional financial compliance with world-class relational prospecting systems.

To maximize your professional impact, this guide completely integrates the legendary 8-step invitation framework popularized by Eric Worre in GoPro: 7 Steps to Becoming a Network Marketing Professional. By blending professional financial service guidelines with these structural rules, you eliminate awkwardness, bypass natural consumer defenses, and establish absolute professional posture from day one.

The Four Core Mindset Principles of Eric Worre

1. Disconnect Your Emotions from the Outcome: Your goal is not to close a contract or recruit someone on the first conversation. Your goal is 100% focused on education and understanding. You are a consultant sharing insights, not a hunter chasing prey.
2. Be Yourself: Do not adopt a bizarre, corporate persona. Remain completely authentic, using your natural vocabulary, but amplify your focus and clarity.
3. Bring Passion and Enthusiasm: Energy is contagious. If you are genuinely excited about your new financial career path and the generational wealth tools you are mastering, your warm contacts will mirror that curiosity.
4. Have Strong Posture: Do not apologize for taking up someone's time. Do not beg or appear desperate. You represent wealth creation, asset protection, and systemic freedom. Carry yourself like an Executive Director.

CHAPTER 2

Warm Market vs. Cold Market Landscapes

2. Warm Market vs. Cold Market Landscapes

Understanding the structural differences between these two landscapes will govern your tone, strategy, and expectations across your active pipelines.

Dimension	Warm Market	Cold Market
Definition	People you know personally, have an existing relationship with, or share a mutual connection with.	Complete strangers who have no prior knowledge of you, your character, or your company.
Trust Level	High initial trust; baseline credibility is established.	Zero initial trust; high skepticism and defensive barriers.
Primary Advantage	Easy accessibility, high response rates, and open communication channels.	Infinite scale; you will never run out of strangers in the world.
Primary Challenge	Emotional attachment to the outcome; risk of personal awkwardness if handled poorly.	High rejection rates; requires significant time, money, and effort to build rapport.

CHAPTER 3

The Master 8-Step Invitation Architecture

3. The Master 8-Step Invitation Architecture

This is the precise psychological sequence for inviting warm contacts to evaluate an opportunity or financial review. Every script in this playbook is built upon this specific framework.

Step Number	Step Name	Strategic Objective Focus
Step 1	Be in a Hurry	Creates psychological urgency, prevents over-explaining, and minimizes small talk leaks.
Step 2	Compliment the Prospect	Lowers natural psychological defenses and builds instant mutual respect.
Step 3	Make the Invitation	Presents the opportunity cleanly (Direct, Indirect, or Super-Indirect approach).
Step 4	If I, Would You?	The golden psychological rule of reciprocity. You don't offer value without an agreement.
Step 5	Confirmation #1 (Time)	Gets the prospect to make a firm time commitment themselves.
Step 6	Confirmation #2 (Locking it In)	Confirms that the prospect will actually follow through at that exact time.
Step 7	Confirmation #3 (Set Next Step)	Secures the calendar spot and establishes professional expectation.
Step 8	Get Off the Phone	Ends the conversation before you break the 'hurry' rule and start over-explaining.

COACHING NOTE ON THE 3 INVITING APPROACHES

- Direct Approach: Used when the prospect has a clear need or desires a fresh option/opportunity.
- Indirect Approach: Asking the prospect for their expert opinion, guidance, or practice feedback.
- Super-Indirect Approach: Telling the prospect they aren't a fit, but asking if they know anyone else who might be. This triggers deep, natural human curiosity.

CHAPTER 4

Comprehensive Phone Introduction Scripts

4. Comprehensive Phone Introduction Scripts

Here are comprehensive core scripts integrating the 8-step framework across your key warm market network sectors.

SCRIPT 1: FAMILY MEMBER (INDIRECT PRACTICE APPROACH)

"Hey Aunt Susan, I know you're incredibly busy right now and I'm running out the door to a training presentation, but I needed to reach you quickly. (Be in a hurry) ... You've always been one of the smartest business minds in our family, and I've always respected your opinion when it comes to career tracks. (Compliment) ... Listen, I've recently stepped into a role with a wealth advisory and financial services group. I'm undergoing a structured Field Apprenticeship Program to get fully certified. Part of my training requires me to run through an educational overview with sharp people I trust to get their feedback. (Invitation) ... If I could get you onto a brief 20-minute Zoom call with myself and my field instructor, would you be open to letting me practice on you and getting your honest thoughts? (If I, Would You?) ... Awesome! When do you think you could definitely watch the 20-minute presentation for me? ... Perfect, so if I lock in Thursday at 7:00 PM, you'll definitely be sitting in front of your computer then, right? (Confirm Time) ... Great, I will text you the secure Zoom link right now. I have to run, but I'll see you on Zoom Thursday at 7:00 PM sharp! Thanks, Aunt Susan!" (Get off the phone)

SCRIPT 2: CLOSE FRIEND (DIRECT OPPORTUNITY APPROACH)

"Hey David, man I am completely swamped preparing for a big team briefing, but I had to call you real fast. (Be in a hurry) ... You know you've always been one of the most hard-working, competitive guys I know, and I've always admired your drive. (Compliment) ... Look, you mentioned last week that you were stressed about the corporate structure at your job and needed extra income. I just partnered with a financial services firm and we are scaling a remote team across the territory. I immediately thought of you. (Invitation) ... If I sent you a private link to an exclusive 15-minute business overview video, would you watch it? (If I, Would You?) ... Cool. When do you think you can watch it for sure? ... So if I call you Friday morning at 10:00 AM, you'll have definitely reviewed it by then, right? (Confirm Time) ... Excellent. I'm texting you the link right now. Got to jump into my briefing—talk to you Friday morning!" (Get off the phone)

SCRIPT 3: FORMER CO-WORKER (DIRECT APPROACH)

"Hi Sarah, I only have a quick second before my next consultation, but I wanted to touch base. (Be in a hurry) ... You were always the sharpest systems organizer at the office, and I always loved working with you because you get things done. (Compliment) ... I've recently left that sector and launched an independent agency footprint in financial consulting. We help professionals optimize their retirement tracks and eliminate debt. I'm expanding my operations and looking for sharp partners. (Invitation) ... If I could arrange a private 15-minute executive Zoom summary with my senior manager this week, would you be open to checking out the compensation model? (If I, Would You?) ... Great. When is the absolute earliest you could block out 15 minutes? ... So if we lock in Tuesday at 6:30 PM, you are 100% confirmed for that time slot? (Confirm Time) ... Perfect. I'll add it to our executive calendar and send the calendar invite. Have to hop into my client meeting now—talk soon!" (Get off the phone)

SCRIPT 4: CHURCH MEMBER (INDIRECT APPROACH)

"Brother Thomas, I hope you're having a blessed day. I'm actually stepping into a ministry meeting in just a moment, but I wanted to check in quickly. (Be in a hurry) ... You've always been such a trusted leader and pillar of stewardship in our congregation, and I value your wisdom immensely. (Compliment) ... I have recently taken on a mission-driven career path focused on community financial literacy and family asset protection. We teach families how to build generational wealth safely. (Invitation) ... If I could share a brief 20-minute digital presentation showing how we educate local families, would you be open to reviewing it just so you know the resources available to our community? (If I, Would You?) ... Fantastic. When do you think you would have a quiet 20 minutes to look at it? ... So if we connect via Zoom on Monday evening at 7 PM, that will work perfectly for your schedule? (Confirm Time) ... Wonderful. I will text you the digital invite now. Have to go to my meeting—God bless you!" (Get off the phone)

SCRIPT 5: NEIGHBOR (DIRECT SERVICE APPROACH)

"Hey Jim, I'm actually packing up my car to head to a field presentation, but I wanted to catch you real quick. (Be in a hurry) ... You and Linda have always been the most reliable, family-first neighbors on this block, and I always appreciate how well you take care of things. (Compliment) ... In my role as a financial protection specialist, I'm currently helping families in our neighborhood audit their mortgage protection and private retirement setups to make sure they are bulletproof against inflation. (Invitation) ... If I offered to run a complimentary, private 20-minute financial health checkup for you guys via Zoom, would you be open to taking a look at your numbers? (If I, Would You?) ... Awesome. When would you and Linda have 20 minutes to sit down together in front of a laptop? ... Perfect, so if I book us for Saturday morning at 10:00 AM, that's a locked-in date on your calendar? (Confirm Time) ... Exceptional. I'll send the link over text right now. Got to get on the road—see you Saturday!" (Get off the phone)

SCRIPT 6: FORMER CLASSMATE (SUPER-INDIRECT OPPORTUNITY APPROACH)

"Hey Jessica! I'm right in the middle of wrapping up a project deadline, but I wanted to reach out to you out of the blue. (Be in a hurry) ... I saw your LinkedIn updates—you have turned into an incredibly successful corporate leader, and I've always known you'd do massive things. (Compliment) ... Look, the financial services practice I run is expanding aggressively right now. The business model isn't for you—I know you're fully locked into your career track—but I'm looking for sharp, ambitious professionals who want to build a high-leverage side hustle completely remote. (Super-Indirect Invitation) ... If I sent you a short, 10-minute brief outlining the type of talent I'm looking for, would you be open to scanning it to see if you know anyone who fits our culture? (If I, Would You?) ... I appreciate that so much. When do you think you'd have a quick minute to check it out? ... Excellent, so if I touch base on Wednesday morning, you'll have looked it over for sure? (Confirm Time) ... You're the best. I'm sending it over now. Talk to you Wednesday!" (Get off the phone)

SCRIPT 7: BUSINESS CONTACT (DIRECT B2B APPROACH)

"Mark, this is Robert. I'm stepping into a boardroom meeting in two minutes, but I wanted to make contact while it was on my mind. (Be in a hurry) ... Your track record in real estate development is stellar, and you have one of the sharpest eyes for wealth accumulation I've encountered. (Compliment) ... I have integrated a comprehensive financial services arm into my professional portfolio, focusing heavily on advanced corporate tax-mitigation structures and executive equity leverage. (Invitation) ... If I could secure a brief 15-minute business-to-business call to outline our corporate capabilities and explore a mutual cross-referral alliance, would you be open to an executive sync? (If I, Would You?) ... Perfect. What day this week fits your calendar for a firm 15-minute block? ... So if I log us in for Thursday at 2:00 PM, we are completely set? (Confirm Time) ... Done. Sending the calendar link now. Stepping into my meeting—speak then." (Get off the phone)

SCRIPT 8: REFERRAL FROM A FRIEND (DIRECT SERVICE APPROACH)

"Hi Brenda, my name is Marcus Davis. I'm right in the middle of a client review session, but our mutual friend, Sarah Jenkins, gave me your number and told me I needed to call you immediately. (Be in a hurry) ... Sarah mentioned that you are an exceptionally sharp, family-oriented professional who always does things with absolute excellence. (Compliment) ... I manage a specialized financial services practice. Sarah recently went through our private wealth protection process, and she insisted that you would deeply appreciate seeing the unique tax-advantaged concepts we teach. (Invitation) ... If I could arrange a complimentary 20-minute digital consultation to walk you through our core protection frameworks, would you be open to checking it out? (If I, Would You?) ... Wonderful. When do you think you could comfortably carve out 20 minutes for a Zoom session next week? ... Great, so if I register us for Tuesday at 7:30 PM, that works perfectly on your end? (Confirm Time) ... Fantastic, I'll send over the secure confirmation details right now. Back to my client session—have a great afternoon!" (Get off the phone)

SCRIPT 9: EXISTING CLIENT (DIRECT VALUE ADD)

"Hi Elena, this is Jonathan. I'm prepping for an underwriting audit right now, but I wanted to call you quickly. (Be in a hurry) ... You've always been one of my favorite clients because you are so proactive about protecting your kids' future. (Compliment) ... Our firm has just finalized advanced structural updates regarding Living Benefits and Living-Value protection tags. It allows you to access your policy's face value while you are alive if you ever face a medical emergency, with no premium increase. (Invitation) ... If I opened up a private 15-minute calendar slot this week to run through your annual coverage audit and add these enhancements, would you and Greg jump on Zoom? (If I, Would You?) ... Awesome. What evening looks best for you guys? ... Perfect, so if I secure Wednesday at 6:15 PM, you'll both be available online? (Confirm Time) ... Excellent, locking it into the underwriting system now. Got to go, see you Wednesday!" (Get off the phone)

CHAPTER 5

Brief & Punchy Text Message Scripts

5. Brief & Punchy Text Message Scripts

Text messages must remain brief and punchy. They simulate Eric Worre's steps by building a rapid, back-and-forth conversation rather than dropping everything in one massive text block.

Casual Styles

• Text 1 (In a Hurry / Direct): "Hey [Name], running into a team meeting but quick question. You've always had an awesome head for business. I just launched a remote financial wellness venture. If I sent you a 10-min overview video, would you take a look?"
• Text 2 (Indirect Practice): "Hey [Name]! Super busy week but need a quick favor. I'm finishing a major financial certification and need to practice an educational presentation on someone sharp I trust. If I set up a 20-min Zoom, would you let me practice on you? No selling at all!"
• Text 3 (Direct Income Ask): "Hey [Name], quick second before my next appointment. Are you open to diversifying your income side-hustle style right now if it didn't conflict with your job? Partnered with an expanding financial group. If I share the model, would you review it?"
• Text 4 (Super-Indirect Ask): "Hey [Name], running around right now but wanted to ask: My financial services firm is expanding fast. Business isn't for you, but do you know anyone sharp/driven looking to add $2k-$4k/mo part-time? If I sent a 5-min description text, would you share it?"

Professional Styles

• Text 5 (Professional Alignment): "Hello [Name], stepping into a client consultation but wanted to connect. I appreciate your executive presence. I'm expanding an independent financial agency practice locally. If I sent over a brief 15-minute corporate sync link, would you evaluate our model?"
• Text 6 (B2B Tax Mitigation): "Hi [Name], quick second before my next meeting. I specialize in helping business owners implement advanced tax-mitigation structures. If I opened a 15-minute consultation slot on Zoom this Thursday, would you be open to evaluating your numbers?"
• Text 7 (Financial Health Audit): "Hello [Name], wrapping up my schedule today. With the 2026 tax changes, my firm is hosting brief, complimentary financial health checks for corporate professionals. If I secure a custom review voucher for you, would you use it?"
• Text 8 (Networking Synergy): "Hi [Name], running to an underwriting audit. I respect your business track record. If I coordinated a brief 15-minute virtual introduction next week to share cross-referral models between our practices, would you be open to syncing up?"

Friendly Styles

• Text 9 (Friendly Career Move): "Hey [Name]! Running out the door but wanted to share: I've transitioned into financial education to help families protect their assets. You've always been so supportive. If I set up a quick 15-min Zoom to catch up & show you my path, would you jump on?"
• Text 10 (Exam Success Support): "Hi [Name], just passed my state licensing exams for financial services! Super excited but swamped with field training. If I send you an invite to my private online launch presentation this week, would you log on to support me?"
• Text 11 (Generational Wealth Concept): "Hey [Name], quick question before my next training. I'm teaching families how to build private tax-free banking systems. You're someone I deeply respect. If I share a 10-minute visual map of this concept on Zoom, would you check it out?"
• Text 12 (Parent Protection): "Hey [Name], heading into a seminar. I love how dedicated you are to your kids. I'm specializing in family income safety nets now. If I run a complimentary mortgage protection quote for your home, would you and [Spouse] take a 15-minute look?"

Reconnection, Referral & Appointment Pass Styles

• Text 13 (Old Friend Reconnect): "Hey [Name], long time no see! Prepping a big project right now but saw your post. Let's catch up on life soon. I pivoted into private financial consulting and it's incredible. If I call you this Thursday for a quick 10-min catch-up, would you be free?"
• Text 14 (Former Colleague Reconnect): "Hi [Name], hope everything is good at the old company! Swamped with client reviews here. Left corporate and am now a Senior Field Associate with EFG. If I send you a quick text overview of what I do now, would you want to catch up this week?"
• Text 15 (Direct Referral Request): "Hey [Name], running to a training session. My wealth consulting practice is expanding like crazy. If I give you a short description of the caliber of people I'm looking to train part-time, would you look through your contacts to see who fits?"
• Text 16 (Post-Audit Referral Ask): "Hi [Name], so glad we secured your family plan! I'm on a mission to protect 10 local families this month. If I provide a unique voucher for a free financial blueprint, would you pass it to the sharpest married couple you know?"
• Text 17 (Official Agency Launch): "Hi [Name], official update—I have opened my independent financial services practice! We specialize in debt elimination & tax-advantaged wealth. If I send you my professional digital card and services menu, would you keep me in mind for referrals?"
• Text 18 (Locked-in Zoom Invite): "Hey [Name], closing out my calendar bookings for the week. If I lock in our 20-minute financial overview for Wednesday at 7 PM sharp, will you definitely be ready on Zoom? Let me know so I can secure the slot with my mentor."
• Text 19 (Exclusive Pass Webinar): "Hey [Name], running into an office briefing. My firm is hosting a closed-door web seminar on Tax-Free Retirement rules this Thursday at 8 PM. If I secure one of our remaining guest passes for you, will you definitely log on?"
• Text 20 (FNA Calendar Slot): "Hi [Name], final check before my calendar closes. I have one complimentary Financial Needs Analysis slot open for this Saturday at 9 AM. If I assign this private session to you, will you be available on Zoom to map out your plan?"

CHAPTER 6

Social Media Curiosity & Extraction Workflows

6. Social Media Curiosity & Extraction Workflows

Social media workflows apply the Worre architecture by engaging curiosity and extracting the conversation off the public feed into a dedicated text or phone channel.

FACEBOOK MESSENGER SCENARIO 1: TURNING A COMMENT INTO AN INVITATION

"Hey Sarah, loved your comment on my professional milestone post, thank you! I am literally rushing to lead a team alignment call right now, but I wanted to drop you a message. You have always had such an incredible, positive energy. I've recently scaled my independent financial services agency. If I could get you an exclusive guest link to a 15-minute digital business overview this week, would you check it out? Let me know your thoughts when you can."

INSTAGRAM DM SCENARIO 1: STORY REPLY SEQUENCE

"Hey Jessica! Love your travel stories, that trip looks incredible! ✈️ Hey, I'm running into a leadership workshop right now, but quick question: I'm expanding a remote financial coaching framework helping professionals set up private banking structures. You have an amazing entrepreneurial vibe. If I send you a 10-minute visual brief of what we are building, would you take a look? Drop your number and I'll text it over. Got to jump on my call!"

CHAPTER 7

Recruiting-Oriented Warm Market Scenarios

7. Recruiting-Oriented Warm Market Scenarios

When presenting the business opportunity, tailor Step 2 (The Compliment) and Step 3 (The Invitation) directly to the specific professional realities of the prospect.

SCENARIO 1: SOMEONE SEEKING EXTRA INCOME

"Hey Mark, I only have a quick minute before my next team meeting, but I wanted to touch base. I know you've been working incredibly hard to offset inflation for your family, and I've always admired how dedicated you are. Look, I just partnered with a financial services firm and we are scaling a remote team across the territory. If I send you an exclusive link to a 15-minute overview video, would you look at it? ... Wonderful. So if I reserve that time on my master calendar, you're completely locked in? Done. I'm texting you the link now. Have to run to my client!"

SCENARIO 2: ENTREPRENEUR-MINDED PERSON

"Hey Christian, I'm stepping into a corporate audit in two minutes, but I needed to reach you. You've always had an elite entrepreneurial mindset and a phenomenal eye for commercial trends. I am scaling an independent financial agency footprint across the territory. We have zero overhead and zero geographic restrictions, operating in a massive recession-proof sector. If I schedule an executive brief via Zoom this Tuesday at 2 PM to map out our revenue-sharing and equity models, would you evaluate it for a potential partnership? ... Perfect. So if I lock in Tuesday at 2:00 PM sharp, your schedule is clear and you'll be ready? Outstanding. I will lock it in with our expansion team. See you then!"

CHAPTER 8

Client-Oriented Protection & Value Conversations

8. Client-Oriented Protection & Value Conversations

Position your service explicitly as a complimentary educational audit designed to fortify family structures and protect long-term domestic assets.

SCENARIO 1: MORTGAGE PROTECTION CONVERSATION

"Hi Sarah, I only have a quick second before a training session, but I saw your house post—huge congratulations! You've worked so hard for that beautiful place. In my role as a financial services representative, I specialize in Mortgage Protection setups. We ensure that if any unexpected emergency hits your household income, the home is completely paid off automatically so the family is secure. If I run a complimentary digital quote illustration for your new address, would you take a quick 15-minute look at it on Zoom? ... Great. What day this week works best for a fast check? ... Perfect, so if I book us for Thursday at 7:45 PM, that's a locked-in appointment? ... Exceptional. Sending the link now. See you Thursday!"

SCENARIO 2: FAMILY PROTECTION CONVERSATION (THEORY OF DECREASING RESPONSIBILITY)

"Hey Kevin, sprinting into a seminar right now but wanted to connect. You are a phenomenal dad, and I always respect how much you care for your kids. In my asset protection practice, I'm on a mission to help parents set up bulletproof income safety nets. If I run an automated visual analysis showing how to secure your family fund completely tax-advantaged, would you take a fast look? ... Excellent."

SCENARIO 3: COMPREHENSIVE FINANCIAL NEEDS ANALYSIS (FNA) OFFER

"Hi Karen, I'm wrapping up some financial plans right now, but wanted to drop a fast line. You are someone who always operates with high intelligence regarding your household goals. My agency is running a financial literacy initiative, and I have three vouchers for a complimentary, comprehensive Financial Needs Analysis (FNA). It builds a customized, 30-page blueprint detailing debt acceleration, tax-free retirement forecasting, and emergency fund efficiency. If I assign one of these private vouchers to you, would you take 30 minutes on Zoom to map out your plan? ... Awesome. When can we lock this in before the vouchers expire? ... Perfect, so if we secure Saturday at 9:00 AM, you are locked into the calendar? ... Brilliant. I'm registering your unique voucher number now. Talk Saturday!"

CHAPTER 9

Asking for Referrals (The Super-Indirect Engine)

9. Asking for Referrals (The Super-Indirect Engine)

Eric Worre teaches that the Super-Indirect approach is the single most powerful tool for extracting endless warm referrals. You neutralize the prospect's defensive blocks entirely by stating they aren't a target, but asking for their professional recommendations.

Top 10 Precision Lead Extraction Questions

1. The Small Business Owner Ask: "Who do you know that operates a successful small business in this city who is looking for advanced tax insulation vehicles?"
2. The New Parent Ask: "Who within your social or church group just welcomed a new child and needs to secure a tax-free college growth fund?"
3. The Modern Real Estate Agent Ask: "Who is the sharpest, highest-integrity real estate agent or mortgage broker you know who wants to add massive value to their client stack?"
4. The New Homeowner Ask: "Who is the last person you know who recently closed on a home or relocated to this region?"
5. The Budget-Stressed Professional Ask: "Who do you work with who is constantly looking for ways to mitigate corporate tax liabilities and optimize their cash flow?"
6. The Corporate Overachiever Ask: "Who is the sharpest, most competitive person you know in management who is currently feeling hit by salary caps and is looking for a high-leverage vehicle to run their own business?"
7. The Corporate Burnout Ask: "Who do you work with right now who is incredibly talented but completely exhausted by the corporate grind and is actively praying for a way out?"
8. The Ambitious Graduate Ask: "Who do you know that recently graduated university and wants to build a high-six-figure career path in business consulting instead of settling for basic entry-level positions?"
9. The Active Retiree Ask: "Who do you know that recently retired, is highly professional, and is looking for a meaningful part-time outlet to stay sharp and teach community financial literacy?"
10. The Natural Educator Ask: "Who do you know that is a school teacher or sports coach? They make our absolute finest agency expansion partners because they know how to guide teams and process educational modules. If you were executing an expansion footprint, who are the first two names you would write down?"

CHAPTER 10

Objection Handling (GoPro Disarmament)

10. Objection Handling (GoPro Disarmament)

Eric Worre outlines that objections fall into two distinct categories: Limiting beliefs in themselves (time, money, skills) or Limiting beliefs in the industry (skepticism, sales fear). Use his specific diagnostic patterns to disarm them instantly.

> Objection 1: "I'm too busy / I don't have time."
> GoPro Diagnostic Response: "I completely hear you, Mark. Time is the most valuable asset we have. You have an incredibly packed schedule, which is exactly why I respect you. Let me ask you: If this business could show you a way to build true leverage completely remote, working just 5 to 10 hours a week around your schedule, so you could eventually win your time back, would you be open to taking a 20-minute look at the blueprint?"

> Objection 2: "I'm not interested."
> GoPro Diagnostic Response: "That is completely fine, Sarah! I never expect anyone to be interested in something they haven't actually seen yet anyway. My role is strictly to provide the educational data maps so you have a solid baseline. If the concepts make sense, awesome; if not, no worries at all! If I send the pass link, would you watch it just for your own information?"

> Objection 3: "Is this one of those multi-level schemes?"
> GoPro Diagnostic Response: "I appreciate your transparency, John. There are a lot of models out there and people handle them poorly. Let me clarify: I run an independent financial services practice affiliated with national insurance and wealth clearing houses. We utilize a corporate agency expansion model—similar to how real estate brokerages scale out teams of agents. If you saw how professionally we operate consumer financial education, without any high-pressure tactics, would you be open to seeing the actual layout?"

> Objection 4: "I need to think about it."
> GoPro Diagnostic Response: "I appreciate that, Lisa. Smart people always need to process information. Usually, when someone says they need to think about it, it means they are either highly interested but need specific answers, or they are just trying to be polite and say no. Which one is it for you right now? ... Excellent. Let's tackle those specific questions right now while we have the charts open so you have the exact data to think about."

CHAPTER 11

Follow-Up System Sequences & Resets

11. Follow-Up System Sequences & Resets

Maintaining clear, structured, and professional boundaries during follow-up ensures you preserve organizational posture and momentum.

> Scenario 1: Prospect Didn't Review the Material (The Scripted Reset)
> "Hey David, no worries at all! I know life gets crazy. Since you haven't had a chance to check out the business overview link yet, when do you think you will definitely have reviewed it for sure? ... Excellent. So if I follow up right after that time, you'll have watched it without fail? ... Great, I will lock that into my calendar. Talk to you then!"

> Scenario 2: Ghosted Zoom Appointment (The Posture Re-set)
> "Hey Ryan, I waited for you on our secure Zoom line for 10 minutes but missed you. I know schedules can shift unexpectedly. My calendar is exceptionally tight with client onboardings this week, but I am willing to open up one final slot to get your financial blueprint mapped out. If I lock in this Saturday morning at 9:00 AM sharp, will you definitely be online, or should we table this for a later month? Let me know."

> Scenario 3: Post-Exposure Follow-Up (The Close Question)
> "Hey Lisa, hope you enjoyed the executive business briefing! (Worre Rule: Never ask 'What did you think?' This triggers critical judgment). Instead, ask: 'What caught your attention the most about what you just saw in that overview?'"

CHAPTER 12

The Launch Phase 30-Day Blueprint Matrix

12. The Launch Phase 30-Day Blueprint Matrix

Execute these targeted milestone metrics across your first 30 days to systematically activate your pipeline networks.

Onboarding Segment	Primary Objective Focus	Operational Target Metrics
Days 1–5	Construct the Inventory. List all phone, email, and social media contacts. Group them into Direct, Indirect, and Super-Indirect columns.	150 names mapped cleanly. Zero pre-judging allowed.
Days 6–15	The Inviting Avalanche. Initiate the 8-Step framework calls to book training and practice appointments.	60 Invites completed; 20 firm commitments booked on Zoom.
Days 16–25	Field Execution. Conduct presentations alongside your Certified Field Mentor (CFM) for structural closure.	Complete 12 full overviews; collect 25 fresh referrals; submit early client apps.
Days 26–30	Independence Transition. Run overviews independently; deep-dive into the referral pipeline.	15 referral appointments scheduled.

CHAPTER 13

Core Execution Laws (Do's and Don'ts)

13. Core Execution Laws (Do's and Don'ts)

The Strategic Do's Matrix

- Do Stand Up While Calling: Standing up increases your vocal posture, breathing capacity, and energetic delivery.
- Do Stay in a Hurry: Urgency protects you from over-explaining or getting trapped answering advanced technical questions prematurely.
- Do Ask 'What Liked Most?': Always steer the prospect's brain toward positive value assets post-exposure.
- Do Use the 'If I, Would You?' Rule: Never give away resources, video links, or calendar slots for free without an explicit reciprocal commitment.
- Do Track Everything in GWTrack: Document every step of the exposure chain to ensure no lead is dropped.

The Strict Don'ts Boundaries

- Never Brain-Dump / Over-Explain: Do not explain product riders, compensation matrices, or company history on an introductory call. The invite is strictly to book the presentation.
- Never Sound Apologetic: Stop saying 'Sorry to bother you.' You are offering financial literacy and economic independence. Value your position.
- Never Argue or Convince: If a contact is highly resistant, pull the offer away gracefully without breaking character. Move to the next file.

Field Apprenticeship Practice & Self-Evaluation

14. Field Apprenticeship Practice & Self-Evaluation

INTERACTIVE MENTOR SIMULATION CHALLENGE

• Instructions: The mentor plays a warm contact who repeatedly demands information over the phone: "Just tell me what the company name is. How much does it cost? How do you make money?"
• Apprentice Action: The apprentice must successfully navigate these questions using the hurry rule: "That's exactly why we need to sit down for 20 minutes on Zoom; it's 90% visual and impossible to explain over the phone. If I lock in Thursday, will you be ready?" Run until flawless posture is maintained.

FAP Associate Self-Evaluation Audit Matrix

Evaluate your performance out of 5 points for every warm invitation call executed:

[ ] Urgency Posture (Step 1): Did I clearly state I was in a hurry, or did I linger in unfocused small talk? (____)

[ ] Sincere Edification (Step 2): Did I give a customized, powerful compliment to elevate their confidence? (____)

[ ] The Reciprocity Trigger (Step 4): Did I explicitly state 'If I, Would You?' before offering the resource? (____)

[ ] Firm Schedule Locks (Steps 5-7): Did I get them to state the time commitment twice, confirming their presence? (____)

CHAPTER 15

Deep Diagnostic Invitation Frequently Asked Questions

15. Deep Diagnostic Invitation Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

1. What do I do if a prospect completely ignores my text or follow-up messages?
   Execute the Posture Reset script in Section 11. Do not text them continuously or express frustration. Move them down your tracking file and focus completely on fresh production activity.
2. Can I apply the 8-step framework to text messaging effectively?
   Yes, but break it up into micro-interactions. Text 1 establishes the hurry and the compliment. Text 2 makes the invitation and the 'If I, would you?'. Wait for their affirmative text before sending the schedule options.
3. How long should I stay in casual 'FORD' small talk before launching into Step 1?
   Keep small talk to an absolute minimum on an invitation call. If you spend 15 minutes catching up, you cannot cleanly transition into being 'in a hurry.' Separate pure catching-up calls from specific invitation calls.
4. What if a family member tells me this sector is too risky?
   Smile and say: "I completely appreciate your care for me, and I love that you look out for my safety. That is exactly why I want you to evaluate our compliance, asset security, and institutional capabilities, which we run through standard mobile or desktop browsers via Zoom. It requires zero complex setups. If I walk you through the connection link over the phone, would you take a 15-minute look?"
5. Should I pitch people on my warm list who are already highly successful and wealthy?
   Yes! Successful people are always looking for tax-mitigation strategies, capital preservation, and diversified high-leverage business investments. They are often your best clients and premium partners.
6. How do I introduce my mentor on a 3-way call without sounding awkward?
   Treat your mentor as an absolute elite resource, which automatically shifts the prospect into an attentive, respectful listening state. Edify their background, highlight the scale of their practice, and emphasize that they have cleared time specifically to protect this appointment.
7. What if a prospect says, 'I need to talk to my spouse first before looking at anything'?
   Say: "That is exactly why I want both of you on our Zoom briefing together. Financial strategies are a team sport for households. If I open up our secure line this Thursday night, will you both be available?"
8. Why shouldn't I try to pitch childhood close friends who don't respect my professional space?
   Because proximity breeds static memory fields. They view you through the lens of who you were in the past. Focus heavily on acquaintances, colleagues, and referrals where your professional identity is fresh.
9. What is the core metric that determines success in an agency launch?
   The number of independent exposures running across your pipeline daily. The faster you move your warm contacts through the 8-step invitation framework into a presentation, the faster your agency scales.
10. How do I transition a lead from an opportunity presentation to a product sale?
    If they review the business model and say they aren't interested in building an agency, say: "Totally understand! Since the business side isn't your path, let's ensure your personal household is fully taken care of using the elite protection and tax structures you just observed. Let's run your numbers this week."
11. What is the single most valuable habit of an elite Executive Director?
    An unwavering commitment to daily, structured prospecting activity tracking, completely detached from immediate emotional results, fueled entirely by the compound velocity of systemic operations.
